Bank of America Master Teacher Award

Emporia State University established the Kansas Master Teacher awards in 1954. The awards are presented annually to teachers who have served the profession long and well and who also typify the outstanding qualities of earnest and conscientious teachers.

The university's Administrative Council originally developed the Kansas Master Teacher Award program in the early 1950s. Dr. Everett Rich, former chair of the English department, was the driving force behind the program.

The program was first discussed in 1952. Because of the illness and subsequent death of President David L. MacFarlane in 1953, nothing was done to establish the program until the following year. In 1954, with the support of Dr. Don Davis, the chair of the division of education, and the approval of the new president, John E. King, the first awards were made.

In the early days of the program, numerous faculty members and others connected with the college were involved in establishing policies and procedures. Dr. Davis added "Kansas" to the name. Rich suggested "distinguished," but that word was changed to "master." Ray Cremer, business manager, promoted a monetary award for the recipients, but Dr. King believed that watches were more appropriate, so watches were awarded. C.O. Wright, executive secretary of the Kansas State Teachers Association, suggested that local teacher associations or similar educational groups make the nominations. Dr. Rich coordinated publicity for the awards across the state.

The Kansas Master Teacher Award program expresses appreciation for the generosity of Bank of America. Since 1980, this Emporia bank has pledged over $100,000 to permanently endow the Kansas Master Teacher Awards. Bank of America and its senior officer, Carol Patterson, are committed to assisting Emporia State University in its efforts to excel.

Each year, local teacher associations and school faculties nominate candidates for the awards. In January, a committee representing educational organizations from across Kansas selects the winners.

The 2009 selection committee included Mary Getto, United School Administrators; Kevin Riemann, Kansas–NEA; Jackie Waters, Kansas PTA; Barbara Bunting, Kansas Association of School Boards; Terri Sullivan, Kansas–American Association of University Women; Petra Elmore, Kappa Delta Pi (student representative); Carol Strickland, Emporia, former Kansas Master Teacher and Deborah Nauerth, recipient of the 2009 Master Teacher Black Endowed Chair.

A committee of Emporia State University faculty and administrators coordinates local arrangements. The committee includes: Ken Weaver, Jesse Tuel, Jenny Harder, Sue Peterson, Scott Waters, Lucie Eusey, Sarah McKernan and Lori Mann, chairperson.

Information concerning the Kansas Master Teacher Award program is available on The Teachers College web site. Go to www.emporia.edu/teach/ and click on Kansas Master Teacher.

The William A. Black Kansas Master Teacher Endowed Chair

In 1984, the Black family of Broken Bow, Oklahoma, established an endowed chair for Kansas Master Teachers. Each year, this permanently endowed fund provides a stipend for two Kansas Master Teachers to spend part of a semester at Emporia State University.

The master teachers selected teach classes and work with students who plan careers in education. The endowed chair provides a valuable experience for Emporia State students and a meaningful opportunity for the master teachers.

The William A. Black Kansas Master Teacher Endowed Chair was established by Marea Belfield Black to honor the Black family's lifelong dedication to public education. The endowed chair is named for her husband, Dr. William Albert Black.

The late Dr. Black (pictured above) was born November 25, 1897, in Green County, Missouri. He received his bachelor's degree in 1926 and his master's degree in 1934 from Emporia State University. He received his PhD in philosophy, education, and psychology from the University of Colorado. Black was nationally known for establishing junior colleges and for his work in school finance and curricula.

During his career, he served as president of the Pueblo (CO) Junior College, director of junior colleges and curriculum for the state of Washington, and as the head of the department of education and philosophy at Pittsburg State University. In 1962, while at Pittsburg State, he received the Kansas Master Teacher Award.

Black married Marea Belfield on November 7, 1920. The Black's son, William Vincent Black, was born March 31, 1922, and the family moved to Broken Bow, Oklahoma on March 1, 1973. Dr. Black died on October 12, 1983. Emporia State University is deeply grateful to the Black family for this generous contribution.

Kenneth J. Bingman
Honors and AP Biology Instructor
Blue Valley West High School
USD 229, Blue Valley

Kenneth J. Bingman has learned a central truth in his 46 years of teaching experience: the most important requirement is for the instructor to love teaching and to like students. “At this age they are the most dynamic, energetic, creative, and fun-loving people I know,” Bingman writes. “One of the challenges is to channel their limitless energy and positive attitudes toward learning. When this happens, students become perpetual learners.”

Bingman embodies these very same characteristics, leaving his mark as a highly renowned educator who former students seek out for friendship and mentoring, a man who spends his summers leading students around the world on educational adventures.

“Mr. Bingman has made a permanent mark on science education worldwide,” one former student writes. Another former student describes how Bingman’s methods extended beyond biology, and the habit of learning. “He is able to teach his students how they learn, making it easier for them to absorb the necessary information in a more timely and efficient manner. It is because of his guidance that I will be much more successful in college than I could hope to be otherwise.”

Tom Trigg, Blue Valley superintendent, has been a student under Bingman and watched his children study under Bingman, and now oversees the entire district. “In all my years as a school administrator (30 years) I have never seen a resume as impressive as Ken’s,” Trigg writes. “His passion for teaching, the teaching profession, the sciences, and students is at a level very seldom seen.”

Bingman earned his bachelor’s degree from the University of Kansas and his master’s degree in biology from Emporia State University. He has taught high school students since 1963.

Lynne "Christy" Boerner
Kindergarten
Central Elementary School
USD 320, Wamego

Lynne "Christy" Boerner received a powerful reminder of the impact of teaching when a former student, now in her ninth year of teaching, wrote to Boerner about her memories of kindergarten.

"She said when she was in my kindergarten classroom that her parents were going through a divorce and school was the safe and secure place for her to come each day," Boerner recalled. "She explained that because of my influence, she had decided that she too wanted to become a teacher. When I received this letter, I read it and cried because I knew I made a difference in the life of a student. This is what teaching is all about!"

In and out of the classroom, Boerner's record shows a well-rounded educator, involved in school and community activities. A fellow teacher writes that challenging students thrive in Boerner's classroom because she cares for each one's unique needs. And after 31 years in the classroom, she's beginning to teach the children of former students. "All parents are thrilled when they find out Mrs. Boerner will be their child's teacher, but the parents who were once her students are more thrilled because they know her and the wonderful learning environment she provides."

A current student, in a nomination letter adorned with crayon drawings, writes on Boerner's behalf, paraphrased: "Because she's a good teacher, because she helps me and I love her. I am so happy that she is my teacher."

A parent writes, "As a speech-language pathologist having worked in several different school districts, I believe Mrs. Boerner is the finest kindergarten teacher I have met."

Boerner earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Kansas State University in 1977, and a master's degree in curriculum and instruction from KSU in 1993. She has taught Wamego kindergarteners since 1978.

Barbara Duffer Cole
Seventh-Eighth Grade Art, ELL, Leadership
Shawnee Heights Middle School
USD 450, Shawnee Heights

Drawing upon the lifelong learning skills her parents instilled in her, Barbara Duffer Cole molds her classroom environment so that students relate the curriculum to past and present experiences. She also maintains the classroom as a safe and nurturing environment.

“I believe teachers are the most important role models for setting an example for other students to follow,” Cole writes. “It is how teachers handle difficult situations in the classroom that teach our students respect, kindness and patience. These qualities are essential for the classroom and also for students to learn to be caring, productive citizens.”

As an artist, Cole brings out the students’ sense of self-expression. As a friend and mentor, she connects with each one. Tim Hallacy, Shawnee Heights Middle School principal, said Cole has a “deep, empathetic ability” to reach students across the spectrum, from English language learners to student council leaders. “Barb took over our Student Council when no one else wanted to and transformed it into a Student Leadership Academy,” Hallacy writes. “In doing so, she quadrupled the number of student participants, changed the focus from social activities to leadership development, and provided multiple opportunities for our students to get involved and give back to the community in which they live.”

A former student commends Cole for her hands-on methods in art classes. “In my opinion, that boosts their self-confidence knowing that they can understand the material, and I think it helps them learn in other places,” the student wrote. “The fact that you also make it fun is just an added bonus. What is also amazing is that you get along so well with your students.”

Cole earned a bachelor’s degree in art education from Washburn University. She also holds a master of arts in education from Baker University and an ESOL endorsement from Kansas State University. She began teaching in 1991.

Beverly Steele Furlong
Kindergarten
Sunflower Elementary School
USD 231, Gardner Edgerton

An accomplished teacher and expressive writer, Beverly Steele Furlong exudes joy as she describes her classroom experiences. She has fashioned four guiding principles to keep her grounded while teaching: that all children can learn; that the learner can be involved in constructing new meaning; that education is a collaborative process with parents, colleagues and the community; and that teaching requires continually renewed instructional practices.

“It is my hope that the story of my classroom is one of innovation and inquiry,” she writes. “It is my expectation that students leave my classroom with the essential skills and undaunted attitudes to be lifetime problem solvers and seekers of deeper understandings.”

Dustin Mortenson, the Sunflower Elementary School principal, says Furlong is a highly regarded teacher for her habit of building consensus with all stakeholders. “On numerous occasions I have consulted with Bev on matters ranging from early childhood programming to Sunflower traditions, and throughout all of our brainstorming sessions Bev has demonstrated a thoughtful, professional, and dedicated resolve to maintain a focus on doing what is best for our kids,” he writes.

A parent whose three children passed through Furlong’s classroom attests to her influence. “Her ability to challenge my kids according to their abilities and work with them in areas of need was very important to me,” the parent wrote. “She is most definitely one of the most positive influences not only on my kids, but on my entire family. My kids’ love for school can be attributed to the awesome start they had from Bev Furlong in kindergarten.”

Furlong earned a bachelor’s degree in education from Emporia State University in 1986, an ESL endorsement from Kansas State University in 1999, and a master of education in technology-enhanced teaching from MidAmerica Nazarene University in 2006. She began teaching kindergarten in 1986.

Jeline Harclerode
CONNECT Teacher
Emporia Middle School
USD 253, Emporia

Mrs. Jeline Harclerode has taken the concept of caring to another level as a teacher, engaging her students in and out of the classroom – particularly those who are the most challenging – with an attitude of “whatever it takes.”

“Whatever it takes’ means meeting adolescents at their level of need; it means listening to their most recent accomplishments or the conditions of their probation – with unconditional acceptance,” Harclerode writes. “They are not looking for advice; they are looking for someone to listen.”

Harclerode has been listening to Emporia students since 1974. As a consummate professional, she is fully engaged in professional and community organizations and consistently participates in district committee work. She teaches CONNECT classes, instructing students in integrated computer use. One student recalls what Harclerode wrote in his yearbook: “Even when you were disrupting class you were doing it with a smile!” The student writes, “What I would say to that is, I did it with a smile because of Mrs. Harclerode. She made everything worthwhile.”

Steve Ternes, Emporia Middle School principal, was one of her nominators. He noted her rapport with students and colleagues. “If anyone has earned the title of mentor extraordinaire, it is Mrs. Harclerode; she is truly the matriarch of our professional staff and not by choice, but by the values and wisdom she exemplifies.”

Harclerode has taught in the Emporia USD 253 school district her entire career, and in Emporia Middle School since 1997 as a CONNECT teacher. She earned a bachelor’s degree in education from Baker University in 1973, and a master’s degree in special education from Emporia State University in 1974.

Barbara McCalla
Third Grade
Garfield Elementary School
USD 402, Augusta

Teaching since 1967, Barbara McCalla has learned to emphasize caring and patience. “My students must know that I am a constant factor in their lives, that I really care about them, and that I will serve as their advocate,” she writes. “I believe that teamwork and cooperation are essential components in my classroom and know that learning will take place in this environment.”

An award-winning teacher and involved member of her community, McCalla has a record of exceptional service and professional growth, but she’s at her best with students. Kim Christner, Garfield Elementary School principal, takes pleasure in seeing McCalla work with students.

“The first thing you notice upon entering her classroom is her quiet demeanor as she speaks with calm, soothing assurance and acts as every child’s personal cheerleader,” Christner writes. “As you look at the children you notice the smiling faces, the bright, intelligent eyes, and the confidence they have in their learning.”

A former 3rd grade student, now an 8th grader, recalls the impact of her favorite teacher. “Mrs. McCalla had such an influence on me during the year I was her student,” the student writes. “I remember how she had a very gentle way of teaching. She always gave me the individual attention I needed to excel. When I had to give a presentation, she encouraged me, which gave me the confidence to speak in front of the class.”

McCalla earned her bachelor of music education degree from Wichita State University in 1967, and a master’s of music education from WSU in 1971. She began teaching in 1967.

Sarah Meadows
K-5 Numeracy Coach
Scott Computer Technology Magnet School
USD 501, Topeka

Sarah Smith Meadows always tells fellow teachers, especially first-year colleagues, to watch their moods – because a teacher is the “weather” in a classroom: “My actions and attitude are contagious and will determine the type of day my students will have,” she writes. “If I am suffering with a love of learning and learning math, then I want all my students to catch that disease. I set the tone of learning in my classroom.”

The feeling is infectious. Students and colleagues alike recognize how engaging her math lessons are, and the accomplished teacher sets the tone with her work ethic and broader engagement.

“Sarah Meadows lives and breathes mathematics,” writes Deborah Sidwell, the Scott school principal. “She engages every single student in the richness of mathematics by employing a variety of questioning techniques and effective use of wait time. She has an incredible depth of knowledge of mathematics and of children that guides everything she does.”

A former student who entered Meadows’ fourth-grade math class admittedly “loathed” math, and initially feared the class. Soon, though, she was fully engaged. “This obviously had very little to do with the subject and everything to do with the teacher,” the former student writes. “I was so enamored with [Meadows] and her ability to get everyone in the classroom passionate about something. Everyone enjoyed being in this classroom, even if they didn’t like math.”

Meadows earned a bachelor’s degree in mathematics education from Emporia State University in 1974, and she began teaching in that same year.
